162162

G00002

Abstract

To provide an index card having a thumb-index capable of removing all documents classified under the index and by one step.

An index card adapted to be inserted between interleaves in a filing device, and having a thumb-index formed by projecting a part of the index card so as to show a classification of and make a search for a unit of interleaves, and holes for use in binding index cards and interleaves together, the portion of a binding hole side out of four sides of the index card which is in the vicinity of the binding holes being provided with a thumb-index for use in showing a classification of and making a search for a unit of interleaves.