ABSTRACT

A method for information indication, performed by a network device, includes: sending an indication to a user equipment (UE), the indication indicating the UE not to perform a cell search under a given time condition. Another method for information indication, performed by a UE, includes: receiving an indication sent by a network device, and determining not to perform a cell search under a prescribed time condition.

Fig. 2