0005P00091P

Claims

1. Method of packaging set meals for inflight dining, the method comprising:
   - providing service ware items,
   - offering food, beverage or condiment items,
   - preparing at least one configuration of set meal package,
   - assembling a set meal package according to the at least one configuration of set meal package automatically; and
   - refusing at least one of the service ware items, food items, beverage items, condiment items or cutlery items for assembling the set meal package if found quality non-compliance by the machine vision or computer vision.

2. Method of Claim 1, wherein preparing at least one configuration of set meal package comprises storing identification information of the at least one configuration of set meal package.

3. Method of Claim 2, wherein
the storing identification information of the at least one configuration of set meal package comprises keeping identification codes of the set meal package, service ware items of the set meal package, food items of the set meal package, beverage items of the set meal package, condiment items of the set meal package, cutlery items of the set meal package or a combination of any of these.

4. Method of Claim 2 or 3, wherein the storing identification information of the at least one configuration of set meal package comprises preserving graphic images of the set meal package, service ware items of the set meal package, food items of the set meal package, beverage items of the set meal package, condiment items of the set meal package, cutlery items of the set meal package or a combination of any of these.