Abstract

The present invention relates to a method for preparing immediate and sustained release solid dosage forms, comprising antibodies and functional fragments thereof, by solution/suspension layering, optionally coated with a delayed release coating; the solid dosage forms prepared by the method; and the use of the solid dosage forms in the topical treatment in the gastrointestinal tract of a patient.

Figure 1.