Summary

The invention relates to a container for storage and transport of food, with a storage body (12) enclosing an interior space (22), in which the food can be placed, wherein the storage body (12) a removal opening (14) on a top side , through which the food can be taken directly from the container (10).

In order to reduce a spills risk, it is proposed that the container (10) spills protection means (26) and one at the spills protection means (26) attached to a transfer device (30), in that the transfer device (30) and the spills protection means (26) are designed in such a is that the transfer device (30) can be hung around a neck of a user of the container (10), and when the transfer device (30) slung around the neck of the user of the container (10), the spills protection device (26) an upper body of the user at least partially.

(Fig. 2)