ABSRACT

The present invention addresses the problem of providing, as a scaffold material, a cell culture gel that utilizes plasma from adult bovine blood, rather than using extracellular matrix. The present invention further addresses the problem of producing cells using, as the scaffold material for cell culture, a cell culture gel that utilizes plasma from adult bovine blood. The cell culture gel according to the present invention contains: plasma derived from adult bovine blood, and a coagulant.

[Figure 2]