POROUS PROTECTIVE COATING FOR TURBINE ENGINE COMPONENTS

ABSTRACT

A method for coating a substrate of a turbine engine component, the method comprising cold spray depositing a metal-based material onto a surface of the substrate, and heating the deposited metal-based material to increase the porosity of the deposited metal-based material.

Figure 2