

162162

ABSTRACT

G00002

An outdoor air-conditioning system is used to air-condition an outdoor volumetric area. An air-conditioner generates an air-conditioned atmosphere in an outdoor area. This air-conditioned atmosphere is substantially retained within the outdoor area through the creation of a boundary of moving air that retains at least a substantial part of the air-conditioned atmosphere in the outdoor volumetric area within the boundary.

Figure 1