ABSTRACT

Disclosed is a semiconductor device having a wafer level package structure which is characterized by containing a resin layer composed of a resin composition which is curable at 250°C or less. Such a semiconductor device having a wafer level package structure is excellent in low stress properties, solvent resistance, low water absorbency, electrical insulation properties, adhesiveness and the like.