PROCESSING METHOD AND SYSTEM

ABSTRACT

Systems and methods for generating resources using a carbonaceous feedstock, such as algae, are disclosed herein. According to one exemplary method 100, the invention comprises receiving a first gas mixture; separation of the first gas mixture into a first component containing a majority of H_2 gas and a second component containing a second mixture of the remaining gases; and channeling the second component into an apparatus, system or composition for conversion into electrical power.

FIG. 1