Abstract

TOMOGRAPHY OF CURVED SURFACES

Disclosed are a method and apparatus for tomography of a surface in an object. One embodiment is a method that includes determining (520) an expected distortion for each of a plurality of points in a projection of the curved surface onto a detector; and correcting (540) each of the plurality of points in the projection according to the expected distortion of that point.

FIGURE 1