

ABSTRACT

A hydrogen storage system including a plurality of alloy tanks that absorb hydrogen gas and a control device that controls filling of the plurality of alloy tanks with the hydrogen gas, in which the control device alters timings of initiating the filling with the hydrogen gas among the plurality of alloy tanks. Therefore, the hydrogen storage system is capable of suppressing a required cooling capacity.

5