

Abstract
LED module

The LED module is used for insertion into a luminaire, wherein the LED module comprises a plurality of LEDs and has terminals which can be inserted into the socket of the luminaire in order to replace a conventional lighting means. The LED module is characterised in particular by having at least two terminals, each of which can be inserted into a socket of the luminaire for a lighting means.

Fig. 1