ABSTRACT

The present application discloses information indication and determination methods and apparatuses, a communication device and a storage medium. The information indication method comprises: issuing joint indication information according to a mapping relationship between the number of transmission blocks (TBs) and a resource allocation method and/or a modulation coding strategy (MCS), the joint indication information being used for indicating the number of scheduled TBs and at least one of the resource allocation method and the MCS by indicating the mapping relationship.

FIG. 2