

Abstract

Described is the use of Ferrocene and/or Ferrocene derivatives as additive to heavy grade internal combustion engines fuels for high-compression spontaneous-ignition engines. This measure reduces the impairment of the function of downstream aggregates through deposits.

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

