

Abstract

An ion generating device (1) includes discharge electrodes (21·22) each having a plurality of electrically conductive members (25·26) which form, respective tip surfaces (36·37). A longer dimension direction of the tip surfaces (36·37) is nonparallel to an air sending direction (A). This allows for efficient release of ions.