ABSTRACT

BREATHING CONTROL USING HIGH FLOW RESPIRATION ASSISTANCE

High flow therapy is used to treat Cheyne-Stokes respiration and other types of periodic respiration disorders by periodic application of high flow therapy, adjustment of high flow therapy flow rates and/or periodic additions of CO2 or O2 into the air flow provided to the patient.

(FIG. 9)