

A B S T R A C T

An arbitrary pixel electrode is charged with an electrical charge. Then, the charge is maintained for a time period longer than at least one frame period while maintaining the switching element connected to the charged pixel electrode in an off state. After maintaining the charge, an electron beam is irradiated onto the pixel electrode, and the pixel electrode is inspected based on data of a secondary electron emitted from the pixel electrode.

*162162*

*G00002*