

RESULT TYPES FOR CONDITIONAL DATA DISPLAY

Abstract

A set of user interfaces is provided to an administrator of a website. The user interfaces enable the administrator to configure search functionality of the website to present different types of search results differently. For instance, the administrator can use the user interfaces to configure the search functionality to present different properties for search results belonging to different result types.

Fig. 18