

- 25 -

Abstract

FINGER CONTROLLED COMPUTER MOUSE

An electronic mouse controlled substantially by finger movement. The translation of the mouse can be controlled by the index finger placed over a primary selection button. Means for facilitating translation of the mouse are provided for in the primary selection button. Means for facilitating translation include, but are not limited to, concave depressions, protrusions and surface texture with a high coefficient of friction.

Figure 1 is to be published.

MR/CHFN22.AP3

G00002

162162