

ABSTRACT

The present invention addresses the problem of providing a flooring material whereby it becomes possible to improve an anti-aging effect of an activity in various facilities. The present invention provides a flooring material containing a stone material, in which the stone material contains silicon dioxide in an amount of 67.0 to 80.0% by mass, inclusive, relative to the whole amount of the stone material.