

Abstract

A changing area is described that offers more convenience for users, requires less space and is more economical to 5 operate.