

A MODULE AND METHOD FOR INTEGRATING DATA ACROSS DISPARATE BUSINESS APPLICATIONS

Abstract

This document discloses a module and method for integrating information or data across disparate business applications. In particular, the module is configured to receive a message from a business application, enhance the message such that when the enhanced message is received by another disparate business application, the content of the message may be read and subsequently processed by the another disparate business application.

FIGURE 1