

ABSTRACT

The purpose of the present invention is to provide a formulation technique for improving a cool sensation exhibited by a pharmaceutical composition for external use, said composition comprising a nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drug and a monoterpene. A pharmaceutical composition for external use which comprises a nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drug and a monoterpene and to which propylene glycol is added in an amount of more than 10 wt% so that the cool sensation can be improved.

(No Fig.)