

[ABSTRACT]

The present invention relates to a method for producing a vinyl acetate-ethylene copolymer emulsion which has high production stability and compatibility between raw materials, has a small amount of residual monomers, and is capable of improving the durability of a preservative and product stability; and a vinyl acetate-ethylene copolymer emulsion which has excellent durability of preservatives and product stability.