ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to an electrode assembly for iontophoresis which enables iontophoresis administration of a drug that does not dissociate into ions, or that is insoluble or poorly-soluble in water, and which makes it possible to provide the drug with the functionality in drug delivery. More specifically, the present invention relates to the electrode assembly for iontophoresis which comprises a drug enclosed in an ionic nanoparticle.