S101 Display a target page
S102 If a trigger instruction for a target event corresponding to a target label is detected, and the trigger duration of the trigger instruction satisfies a first condition, present a service scenario page corresponding to the target label, wherein an event-associated interface corresponding to the target event is presented in the service scenario page corresponding to the target label
S103 If a trigger instruction for the target event corresponding to the target label is detected, and the trigger duration of the trigger instruction satisfies a second condition, present a service scenario page corresponding to the target label, wherein prompt information corresponding to the target event is presented in the service scenario page corresponding to the target label

(57) Abstract: The present disclosure relates to a method and apparatus for presenting related content for guidance, and an electronic device and a storage medium. The method comprises: displaying a target page, wherein first guide information corresponding to a target label is displayed on the target page, and the first guide information is used for guiding a user to execute a target event corresponding to the target label; if a trigger instruction for the target event corresponding to the target label is detected, and the trigger duration of the trigger instruction satisfies a first condition, presenting a service scenario page corresponding to the target label, wherein an event-associated interface corresponding to the target event is presented in the service scenario page corresponding to the target label; and if a trigger instruction for the target event corresponding to the target label is detected, and the trigger duration of the trigger instruction satisfies a second condition, presenting a service scenario page corresponding to the target label, wherein prompt information corresponding to the target event is presented in the service scenario page corresponding to the target label.
