

Abstract of the disclosure

1,2-Dichloroethane (EDC) is obtained by feeding chlorine and ethylene into circulated catalyst-containing EDC, a part-stream of the reaction mixture being fed to a flash evaporation, the vaporized EDC being separated off from more readily volatile components and these being recycled to the reaction.