

【Abstract】

A language model-based prescription information provision method according to the present invention may comprise the steps of: receiving an exercise curriculum recommendation request from a medical staff terminal into which login is performed using a medical staff account; acquiring the exercise curriculum in response to the request; and providing the acquired exercise curriculum to the medical staff terminal.

FIG.1