HMR 1999/L 042 WO

Abstract

The present invention relates to a process for the storage of proteins in an aqueous solvent. The addition of cysteine delays the decrease in the effective concentration of the protein. The process is suitable for use in the production of proteins in microorganisms.