

IMPROVED STEREOLITHOGRAPHIC CONSTRUCTION TECHNIQUES

ABSTRACT

Improved methods for building stereolithographically-formed parts include providing skinned layers in more than the up- and down-facing features of the part, to methods for avoiding over-exposure of down-facing regions at points of intersection of exposing vectors, and to methods for determining skin thickness.

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

