

Abstract

Disclosed is an integrated catalyst used in an olefin disproportionation reaction. The integrated catalyst comprises a plurality of different integrated active phases, and the 5 relative positions among different active phases remain substantially unchanged during the olefin disproportionation reaction. The effective distance between respective bisecting planes of two adjacent different active phases is 0.5-5 mm, preferably 1-3 mm.

Fig. 1