ABSTRACT

PHARMACEUTICALS FOR TREATMENT OF VIRAL INFECTIONS OF THE EYE

Viral infections of the eye, and particularly viral infections in the Herpesviridae and Adenoviridae families, can be treated by administration of a pharmaceutical made up of an enzymatically active ribonuclease and a vehicle. Advantageously, the enzymatically active ribonuclease is ranpirnase, and the vehicle is an aqueous solution.

Figure for publication: None