ABSTRACT

Provided in the embodiments of the present application are a content processing method and apparatus, and a computer device, a storage medium and a program product. The content processing method comprises: displaying a service interface of a first client; receiving a content input operation in the service interface; in response to query symbols that are input by means of the content input operation, displaying an input method panel; and displaying in the input method panel a first query result corresponding to content that is input by means of the content input operation. By means of the embodiments of the present application, a query result corresponding to input content can be quickly acquired during a content input process.