[0109] Different volumes of blood are passed through the devices, and the captured cells are eluted using 10% Dextran 40 in saline as the elution fluid, passed through the devices via the elution port using a manually operated syringe.

[0110] The average recovery of total nucleated cells is about 59% for the control, about 84% for the device with a single diffusing plate, and about 90% for the device with first and second diffusing plates.
