

ABSTRACT

Provided are a data collection method and apparatus, a device and a storage medium. The method includes that: image data of a picture including a preset scenario is acquired; in the image data, an object in the preset scenario is identified to obtain an identification result; and the image data and the identification result are collected in response to the identification result and/or the image data meeting a preset collection rule.

[Figure 1]