

ABSTRACT

Provided in the embodiments of the present disclosure are a media content display method, an apparatus, an electronic device and a storage medium. The method comprises: acquiring media content, the media content comprising audio, the audio corresponding to a plurality of set timestamps, the media content further comprising a plurality of media resources, and the display form of the plurality of media resources being kept unchanged before and after releasing of the media content; displaying on a display interface at least one media resource included in the media content and playing the audio; when the media content is in an automatic playback mode and the audio is played to a target timestamp among the plurality of set timestamps, switching on the display interface to display the media resource corresponding to the target timestamp, the automatic playback mode being a mode in which each media resource is automatically displayed on the display interface when the audio is played to the corresponding set timestamp; and in response to the switching operation on the display interface, displaying on the display interface the media resource corresponding to the switching operation.