regarding substance and symbolism, that's important," said Michael McFaul, the former U.S. ambassador to Russia.

Trump attended the July 7 dinner closing the summit in Hamburg with more than 30 world leaders and their spouses. At one point, he left his seat next to the Japanese prime minister and headed for an open chair next to Putin.

Although the two had formally met for two hours earlier in the day, they spent "roughly an hour talking privately and animatedly," joined only by Putin's own translator, according to Eurasia Group President and CNBC analyst Ian Bremmer.

Bremmer broke the news of the meeting on Tuesday, and the White House then confirmed it happened, while Trump took to Twitter to downplay the face-time.
