Text of the abstract

The present invention relates to an insulinotropic peptide derivative, wherein the N-terminal histidine residue of a native insulinotropic peptide is substituted with N-dimethyl-histidyl. The present invention also relates to a pharmaceutical composition comprising the same. There is also provided the use of the insulinotropic peptide derivative or the pharmaceutical composition comprising the same for the treatment of diseases.