ABSTRACT

A digital communications system and method to transmit and receive a digital communications signal wherein the digital signal has a plurality of frames, wherein at least two modulations are supportted, and wherein each of the plurality of frames has the same number of symbols.