ABSTRACT

A method for producing methane according the present disclosure includes: producing methane from a raw material gas containing ammonia and carbon dioxide in the presence of a catalyst containing a carrier and a transition metal.