WHAT IS CLAIMED:

1. An article coated with a porous, segmented thermal barrier coating, wherein the coating has a density less than about 88% of the theoretical density, including at least one oxidation resistant bond coat on the article and at least one top coating on top of the bond coat.