

ABSTRACT

Provided is a sputtering target member that can efficiently decrease generation of particles during deposition. The sputtering target member is formed of magnesium having a purity of 99.9% by mass or more, and has an average crystal grain size of magnesium of 42 μm or less.