

ABSTRACT

Embodiments of the present disclosure provide a packet paging method. The method is executed by a terminal. The method comprises: receiving configuration information of packet paging, wherein the configuration information is at least used to indicate that a network supports or does not support a terminal to obtain paging group information in a predetermined mode, and the paging group information is used by the terminal to monitor a paging message.

FIG. 2