Abstract

Systems and methods for prediction of allocation time in a ridesharing service by retrieving historical rideshare allocation records, generating training data based on the retrieved historical rideshare allocation records, training a machine learning model to predict an allocation probability by each candidate allocation time based on the generated training data, receiving a request for a ride, processing the request attributes using the trained machine learning model to estimate an allocation time for the request.

Figure 2