

Abstract

A system for testing the authenticity of a data carrier determines the physical property of the data carrier from an irreversibly adjustable electric state of a circuit present separately on the integrated circuit, and uses the electric property of the circuit for establishing a characteristic value for the data carrier.

Fig. 2

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

THIS SHEET HAS BEEN REPLACED
