

162162

G00002

ABSTRACT

When video game machines are connected to, for example, the Internet through portable communication devices, the difference of communication protocols and communication timings between the portable communication devices and the video game machines can be absorbed by buffer at connection cables which connect the portable communication devices and the video game machines.