

Abstract

The present invention relates to a process comprising the steps a) synthesis of carbon nanotubes, b) optional inerting and c) cooling of the product. The process permits problem-free handling and packing of the carbon nanotube material that is produced.