(54) Title: METHOD AND SYSTEM FOR ADVANCING FUNDS

(57) Abstract: A method for providing funds to a first party based upon accounts receivable due to a first party includes calculating an amount of accounts receivable due to the first party from accounts receivable debtors of the first party or from a portion of the accounts receivable debtors. A second party then transfers funds to the first party based on the amount of accounts receivable due to the first party. As the accounts receivable and any applicable penalty payments are collected from the accounts receivable debtors, the collected amounts receivable and applicable penalty payments are provided to the second party. Systems and platforms for implementing the method are also provided.
