

Abstract

In the present invention, a pharmaceutical composition containing a silicate polymer as an active ingredient which regulates the function of a living body is provided. The silicate polymer of the composition may be manufactured in a process wherein silicic acid or silicate is dissolved in an aqueous solvent, adjusted to pH 4 to 10, and dried. The silicate polymer thus produced is used in the manufacture of medicines effective in regulating the function of living bodies.

THIS SHEET HAS BEEN REPLACED

This Sheet Has Been Replaced

